AMERICAN TERROR

The fact: On November 5, Army Major Nidal Malik Hassan is accused of perpetrating a mass killing at Fort Hood, TX – taking the lives of 13 – as of this writing – and wounding perhaps 30 others. Was it terror? Authorities are at this point saying – not likely. But early reports indicate that he had a history of opposing US foreign policy in the Middle East, drawing a moral equivalency between suicide bombers and soldiers that throw themselves on a grenade, and he may be linked to internet postings re: suicide bombings and other threats. The AP reports that though he was born in Virginia, he listed his nationality as Palestinian.<sup>1</sup> In addition he often argued with other soldiers and believed it was wrong for Muslims to fight against other Muslims. He is recorded saying “Muslims should stand up and fight the aggressor”. One soldier claimed to have overheard Hassan praise the shooting at the Little Rock, Arkansas recruiting station saying, “Maybe people should strap bombs and go into town squares”.<sup>2</sup> And what does it mean when, - according to witnesses he shouted “Allah akbar” (God is great) as he made his attack. That is the cry of the committed jihadist – the would-be martyr – the terrorist. In the months leading up to the event, Hassan also served as a “lay Muslim” religious leader, officiating at Islamic services in the absence of an official chaplain. Authorities are concerned that he may have had the opportunity to spread his radical views.<sup>3</sup> Defining non-Muslims as infidel or unbelievers, he once lectured a group of doctors that these should be ‘beheaded’, ‘condemned to hell’, ‘set on fire’ and have ‘boiling oil poured down their throats’.<sup>4</sup> Though authorities are discounting the possibility of a terror plot, one need not be formally connected to al-Qaida or some other terror organization to take on the mindset of a terrorist.<sup>5</sup>

But is there more to the attack? In a book just out, authors P David Gaubatz and Paul Sperry allege that a “Muslim Mafia” has infiltrated deeply into “every branch of the US military”. They’ve placed Arab interpreters at Guantanamo and spies in most American security agencies. The FBI broke up a Muslim espionage ring at Gitmo in 2004. Gaubatz and Sperry outline activities that are “deliberate” and “global” benefiting “detainees and multiple terrorist organizations, to include al-Qaida and Muslim Brotherhood.” In the process these activities compromise the entire US intelligence establishment.<sup>6</sup> As I write this however, the main stream media is for the most part denying any connection between the alleged Hood shooter and Islam. They tell us he’s been on “radical” websites – not clarifying that they mean ‘Radical Islamic’ websites. Yet from the UK Telegraph and elsewhere we learn that Major Hassan worshipped at a mosque headed by a “radical imam” who is alleged to be the “spiritual advisor” to three of the 9/11 hijackers. That imam, Anwar al Awlaki, has an internet ‘ministry’ in which he “targets US Muslims with radical online lectures encouraging terrorist attacks”<sup>7</sup> In a posting after the attack, Awlaki praised Hassan’s actions, characterizing him as “a man of conscience who could not bear living the contradiction of being a Muslim and serving in an army that is fighting against his own people.” Noting how the shooter opened fire on soldiers about to deploy against the forces of Islam and asked the question, “How can there be any dispute about the virtue of what he has done?”<sup>8</sup> And what he did was jump up on a desk to begin “spraying bullets” at soldiers about to deploy. Looking at his background and his actions leading up to the event, one American intelligence officer concluded, “He was preparing for a martyrdom operation...it was well planned.” That’s terrorism!

THE ECONOMIC HORIZON – Part V

Last time out we looked at how forces behind the scenes are driving the latest developments in the emerging global economic order. The international bankers – such as the Rockefellers and the Rothschilds – are using the Fed and other central banks around the world to manage events to their own liking. Today we’ll begin to explore just where they are headed.

Just Beyond The Bend

Prophecy scholar and FOX News and CNN contributor Paul Maguire tells us that we are on “the verge of planetary change” greater than anything since the Fall of Man in the Garden of Eden. Driving that change is the deliberate destruction of the dollar by forces beyond government - that will force a crisis - that will drive us eventually and inevitably toward a world currency, loss of national sovereignty and the assumption of the mechanisms of world government by international bodies.<sup>9 10</sup> Is that really where this is all headed? Henry Kissinger for instance may think so. Pointing to “upheaval in many parts of the world simultaneously”, the former Secretary of State under Nixon - and Rockefeller man - and Bildeberger - and CFR member believes that President Obama can be an integral force in a time when “a new world order can be created”.<sup>11</sup> These first 9 months of the Obama administration have proven to be a time when crises have and are being used to facilitate the “change” that the President promised in his campaign. America is being remade before our very eyes. And it is being 'remade' with a purpose. This is a change you can believe in.

There is a technocratic elite that has long had plans to move the world toward the creation of a global currency. Paul Volker, the former Chairman of the Federal Reserve gave us the tautology, "A global economy needs a global currency".<sup>12</sup> The man behind the euro, Robert Mundell is a proponent of both a world currency and the possible use of the intermediate step of regional currencies – like the euro – to get there. It was he who pushed the idea of the SDRs or Special Drawing Rights as a vehicle to replace the dollar as the world's currency. China is making moves in that direction having invested $50 billion in the IMF sponsored funds that may be converted into any one of a number of currencies. The economist Mundell is preparing for the next stage in the global economy. In 2008 he was predicting that a 'major dollar crisis' would hit by 2013.<sup>13</sup> Now it follows from all of this that a global currency must be supported by some architecture of global governance.

One route to this end is found in the 'Green Movement', especially the wing that is based on the trumped up, unproven and highly disputed notion that climate change – (global warming) – is occurring and that we need to alter mankind's behavior in order to address it. The UN Earth Summit in Rio de Janeiro in 1992 set the parameters for the movement. Something called Agenda 21 was put in place. It put forth a UN vision that seeks to bind "governments around the world to the United Nation's plan for controlling the way we live, eat, learn, move and communicate - all under the noble banner of saving the earth. If fully implemented, Agenda 21 would have the government involved in every aspect of life of every human on earth".<sup>14</sup> Recently Lord Monckton, former member of the Thatcher cabinet in Great Britain warned that the coming Climate Change Conference to be held in Copenhagen later this year has as its goal the signing of a treaty that would put in place the structures for world government – (according to Monckton and others the word 'government' is actually in the treaty) – and transfer the wealth of West to the Third World.<sup>15</sup> Henry Lamb, writing in World Net Daily, tells us that the draft treaty would "create an international bureaucracy with the authority to regulate energy use". There is open talk about nations being required to contribute 2% of their GDP toward this new international entity. Both Lamb and Monckton believe that President Obama will give his support to this agenda. Lamb points out that the administration could do an end run around significant opposition for the proposal by offering the agreement as a trade agreement requiring simple majority approval in Congress as opposed to the nod of two-thirds of the Senate that is required to ratify a treaty. The President has already given his support to the musings of the G-20 group which seeks to set up a body to control the global economy, "much like the Federal Reserve controls the domestic economy".<sup>16</sup> Each of those moves would begin to create the outline of the new order.

The old order is one of US ascendancy, cemented after World War II, with the American political, economic and moral values imposed as the standard – if not the norm – on the rest of the world. It was enforced to a degree by the US military, the dominance of our economic model – evidenced in our matchless surpassing productivity - and ensured by the strength of the greenback – the backbone of global commerce. Those heady days are fast departing. As Harvard's Niall Ferguson sees it, the US is a declining empire, sentenced to its fate by the fact that it is scrambling to borrow $9 trillion just to salvage its financial system. It owes about half that amount to foreigners. And much like Britain at the dawn of the 20th century – America is underestimating the threat from China in both the economic and military spheres. China's economy is on pace to surpass the US possibly as early as 2027.<sup>17</sup> Thomas Sowell chimes in, laying the blame squarely at the feet of President Obama and his left-leaning administration, - in what Sowell – (an African-American) – calls the "Dismantling of America". He cites Obama's association with Rev Jeremiah Wright of "God damn America" fame and the bomb-throwing Bill Ayers. Mr Sowell goes on to catalogue the hard turn away from traditional American values as evidenced by the actions of the administration's unelected czars. These include: Arbitrarily ordering pay cuts for execs in private businesses, - plans to restrict talk radio, - plans to subsidize newspapers, - federal agencies trying to enlist school children in causes favored by the President, - and officials that praise the likes of the world's greatest mass murderer, Chairman Mao, - or promote deviant sexual practices as the safe- schools czar does.<sup>18</sup>

JR Nyquist explains it all as the disintegration of the American social order, - a process already well underway. Today's financial crisis is "also the result of spiritual and moral degeneration together with the total collapse of parental authority". And to a great degree, we do not even see it. The destruction of that social order has been to a large degree, "masked by American prosperity", that has hung on through the disintegration. The old American value system, - the social order if you will, - was necessarily based on what Nyquist calls a personal moral order. Now, in its stead, a new order of ...socialism is waiting in the wings. It is based on Envy, as evidenced in the call for income redistribution, - demonstrated in a call for "social-equality" and the very disappearance of God from the culture.<sup>19</sup> Change is indeed coming. But what will that look like and how will it manifest itself? We'll have to leave those questions for next time.

IRAN, ISRAEL & THE NEXT PROPHETIC WAR – Part IV

The next major conflict on the prophetic horizon seems to be the Psalms 83 War. It will come with some serious consequences. Israel will expand and fulfill the promises of God vis-à-vis the Land. On the other hand it will be a time of judgment for Israel's enemies.

Of Conflict & Judgment !

Now according to Scripture that war with Syria will also feature the destruction of the world's "...oldest perpetually inhabited city"; - Damascus. "The burden against Damascus. 'Behold, Damascus will cease from being a city, And it will be a ruinous heap'". (Isaiah 17:1)<sup>20</sup> Is this a nuclear attack against the Syrian capital? It may be so. Jeremiah 49:26-27 describes the scene. "Therefore her young men shall fall in her streets, And all the men of war shall be cut off in that day," says the LORD of hosts. 'I will kindle a fire in the wall of Damascus, And it shall consume the palaces of Ben-Hadad.'" What would prompt Israel to use its nuclear arsenal: One of two scenarios at least. As early as 1996, Syria was equipping their Scud-C missiles with VX nerve gas. At that time, the Israeli Government let it be known in unequivocal terms that the very existence of Damascus was at stake should the Syrians, or even the Lebanese based Hezbollah decide to use chemical weapons. The threat was repeated in November of 2000, when Israeli General Kaplinsky threatened to attack Damascus because of Syrian support for increasing terror at the hands of Hezbollah.<sup>21</sup>

After the total destruction of Damascus foretold in Isaiah 17:1, the prophet goes on to detail more judgments in store for Israel's enemies. "The cities of Aroer will be deserted and left to flocks, which will lie down, with no one to make them afraid. The fortified city will disappear from Ephraim, and royal power from Damascus; the remnant of Aram will be like the glory of the Israelites," declares the LORD Almighty." (Isaiah 17:2-3) The prophet here, is communicating God's judgment on more than just Syria. Aroer is in the southern central part of Jordan. Ephraim refers to the West Bank, the very center of Palestinian claimed land, soon it seems to be part of a new Palestinian State. Aram, again refers to the Syrians. The "royal power" or sovereignty of Syria seems to be compromised in this prophecy. The inclusion of Jordan and the Palestinians in the same verses as the Syrians suggests that the destruction of those particular enemies of Israel will occur at the same time, during a general Arab-Israeli War.

The prophet Obadiah deals with God's judgments on Edom, the modern-day Palestinians. In the first several verses he sets the tone. "Thus says the Lord GOD concerning Edom... (... 'Arise, and let us rise up against her for battle'): 'Behold, I will make you small among the nations; You shall be greatly despised. The pride of your heart has deceived you'". (Obadiah 1:3) Then the vision of Obadiah pronounces both judgment and sentence. To understand the Biblical language, recall that in the Old Testament, God changed Jacob's name to Israel. Verse 10 gives the judgment. "For violence against your brother Jacob, shame shall cover you, and you shall be cut off forever." Obadiah 1:15 gives the time of and reason for the sentence. It will be executed as we approach the day of Christ's return. "For the day of the LORD upon all the nations is near; As you have done, it shall be done to you; Your reprisal shall return upon your own head." It is interesting too, the use of the term "reprisal". That is the term often used by the media to describe the "cycle of violence", as they would have it, between Israel and the Palestinians. Then in verses 17&18, we find the terms of the sentence: Total destruction. "The house of Jacob shall possess their possessions. The house of Jacob shall be a fire, and the house of Joseph a flame; But the house of Esau shall be stubble; They shall kindle them and devour them, and no survivor shall remain of the house of Esau," For the LORD has spoken." The terms are stark indeed! Not one "...shall remain of the house of Esau".

A scenario that produces the complete destruction of the Palestinian becomes easier to envision if the event occurs in the course of a war in which Israel is desperately engaged fighting for its very survival. The sentence is confirmed in Isaiah 14:31. "All you of Philistia are dissolved; For smoke will come from the North." The entire scenario is reviewed in Zechariah 9. Here the prophet pronounces again "The burden of the word of the LORD", against Damascus, but this time adds Tyre and Sidon, in modern-day Lebanon, whose power "...will be devoured by fire". Of course that is where Hezbollah has set up camp with its modernized rocket arsenal ready to launch, and capable of hitting now all of Israel. Zechariah goes on to pronounce against the Philistines (Palestinians) and states emphatically in 9:5, that "The king shall perish from Gaza". Gaza is the home of course, of the fanatical Hamas terror entity.

Obadiah describes the extent of Israel's triumph. She will "...possess the mountains of Esau", Philistia, (Palestine and Palestinian), Ephraim, Samaria and Gilead. The border of Israel shall extend all the way to Zarephath, which is well into Lebanon; "And the kingdom shall be the Lord's". (Obadiah 1:21)

Though the timing is less certain, judgment is proclaimed for Egypt also. Isaiah 19:1-3 reads, "The burden against Egypt. Behold, the LORD rides on a swift cloud, and will come into Egypt; The idols of Egypt will totter at His presence, And the heart of Egypt will melt in its midst. 'I will set Egyptians against Egyptians; Everyone will fight against his brother, And everyone against his neighbor, city against city, kingdom against kingdom. The spirit of Egypt will fail in its midst'". It could be describing a scene of both nuclear destruction and civil war. We have seen the seeds of civil discord in the Arab/Islamic world sown by war and terrorism. Tens of thousands of Jordanians hit the streets to protest against al-Qaida following the recent bombings there. In Iraq, we see thousands voting and supporting the new Iraqi regime, while others undermine it with unrelenting terror. The nations are split.

The outcome of the war against Syria, the Palestinians, Jordan, the terrorists of Lebanon and possibly Egypt is one of total victory for Israel. It brings a great annexation of 'Promised' land and a time of peace before the next war. One can only imagine the rage of the surviving Arab-Islamic nations, as they witness the destruction of Damascus, the utter defeat of Syria, and the annexation of parts of Syria, Lebanon, Jordan and the whole of Gaza and the West Bank. Isaiah 17 seems to tell us that it will lead to the hate-fueled invasion by the Gog-Magog alliance of Ezekiel 38. “Oh the raging of many nations, - they rage like the raging sea...they roar like the roaring of great waters.” (Isaiah 17:12) Yet before that invasion there will be a time of peace. When the next alliance comes against God’s People, Ezekiel 38:11 tells us, they will say to themselves, “...‘I will go up against a land of unwalled villages; I will go to a peaceful people, who dwell safely, all of them dwelling without walls, and having neither bars nor gates’”. That peace and sense of security is made possible by Israel’s total victory over the Palestinians and her other Arab neighbors, so totally dedicated to her destruction. Perhaps it is the time of the 7-year treaty confirmed by Antichrist, guaranteeing that peace. In the event, it leads to the great Gog-Magog invasion.

AS IF ON CUE...

Klein Halevi of the Institute for Strategic Studies recently laid out the “dreadful options” facing Israel today. If Israel opts to do nothing when (and should) diplomacy fails to stop Iran from getting the bomb it will forever face an “emboldened” terrorist infrastructure and a nuclear sword of Damocles hanging over Tel Aviv. Iran is not a rational country just trying to get along. It is committed to Israel’s destruction. But should the Israelis choose to strike, - there is first of all the fear that the attack may not be successful – and secondly the response would be the same – successful or not. Hamas, Hezbollah, Iran and perhaps Syria would rain rockets down on Israel. Many of these are now capable of carrying chemical or biological warheads. All Israel is a target. Hamas has now successfully test-fired a rocket capable of reaching Tel Aviv.<sup>22</sup> The warning time for the population once a rocket is launched ranges from about 3 minutes in Jerusalem to almost zero near the borders.<sup>23</sup> Such an attack would be demanded by the Arab Street. Just last month tens of thousands protested in Gaza chanting “death to Israel” and “Muhammed’s army will be back to wipe off the Hebrew state”.<sup>24</sup> An attack would also bring economic disruption, civilian casualties and world opprobrium. The response could spiral into a general Middle East war. Or perhaps the war could come first. According to the Jerusalem Post, Hezbollah busy making concrete preparations for a conflict that they believe would precede any attack on the Iranian nuclear facilities. Possessing a much larger and sophisticated rocket arsenal than they had on hand for the 2006 war, Hezbollah envisions a preemptive Israeli strike to neutralize the threat to Israel from southern Lebanon.<sup>25</sup>

It is only the diplomatic dance being conducted between Iran and the West that is currently delaying an Israeli decision. But patience may be running out. Citing sources in American intelligence, DEBKAfile is reporting “impending war preparations” on the part of both Israel and the US. They report that the Obama administration is looking for congressional approval to open the Strategic Petroleum Reserve, - available only in times of war. According to a 1975 agreement, the US is obligated to assist Israel with its fuel needs in times of emergency. Further, American and Israeli forces are jointly operating anti-missile batteries, having recently completed exercises designed to counter Iranian missile attacks against Israel. Finally, - and here I’m quoting DEBKA, - “US and Israel officials have been instructed to warn Moscow that the military option is still on the table if Iran’s program is not halted by diplomatic means”.<sup>26</sup> Things are getting serious. Reports have surfaced that Iran has tested a nuclear warhead design utilizing advanced technology easier to mount on their rocket arsenal.<sup>27 28</sup> Then comes the interception and seizure of the ship the Francop which was carrying ‘hundreds of tons of Iranian arms’ and ammo – including rockets - ultimately destined for Hezbollah via Syria. According to DEBKA this is all part of a “sealift of arms” running “under the noses of Egyptian security and intelligence authorities”.<sup>29 30</sup>

The pressure is growing for Israel to act and to act soon. And the outlines of a deal are falling into place. We noted last time how Israel is publicly moving toward offering up a concrete proposal for a Palestinian state. That would seem to satisfy President Obama’s condition for help with – or at least a benign blindness to Israel’s efforts - in taking out an Iranian nuclear capability that would hold not just Israel, but the entire Middle East hostage. Now neither the US nor Israel want that war. As Pedro Primavera points out in the American Thinker: The global economy may likely “collapse in the wake of an oil embargo and the closing of the Strait of Hormuz” to oil traffic. But the Mullah’s of Tehran may not mind a bit of conflict quite so much. Just looking at the unrest that accompanied the recent election shows that there is a vibrant and determined opposition. Primavera argues that the Iranian leadership would favor some sort of war with Israel to sustain the Islamic Revolution that drove the Shah from power and installed the Ayatollah. It would also bring the chaos that their leadership has told us is needed to usher in the rule of Mahdi. This is yet another reason Iran is not backing down in their confrontation with the West.<sup>31</sup>

And with all that brewing with Iran, reports are surfacing that when Palestinian Prime Minister Salam Fayyad circulated a plan last summer that calling for the strengthening of Palestinian security and institutions, - it also included – according to DEBKA – “a classified, unreleased portion stipulating a unilateral declaration of independence”. According to reports, the UK, France, Sweden and Spain are looking favorably on this unilateral declaration of Palestinian statehood. An official “claim of sovereignty” directed to the UN after the announcement, would put further international pressure on Israel to concede. Despite pleas for a statement of support on the matter, Washington has not yet indicated how they would respond to such a move.<sup>32</sup> However Aaron Klein writing for World Net Daily characterized the situation thus: “The U.S. is considering adopting a unilateral Palestinian declaration of independence in the West Bank and Jerusalem regardless of negotiations with the Jewish state”.<sup>33</sup> We will watch this situation with interest. It is pregnant with prophetic possibilities. “They shall call its nobles to proclaim the kingdom, but nothing shall be there, and all its princes shall be no more.” (Isaiah 34:12)
