BAD SCIENCE & WORLD GOVERNMENT

By the time you're reading this article the United Nations Climate Change Conference in Copenhagen, Sweden will be in full swing. Its purpose is to tackle that Bogey Man of our age; man-made (anthropomorphic) global warming. The first step is to get the world's biggest nations, - and most significant polluters - to cut greenhouse gas emissions in order to save the planet. The United States and China are being urged to set goals in this area. The administration is looking at a 17% reduction from 2005 levels to be achieved by 2020. The other piece of the package is the transfer of financial support from the developed world, - countries like the US, - to the undeveloped nations, as sort of a penalty for their technological and lifestyle successes. What was originally hoped was that Copenhagen would produce a legally binding agreement that would take the place of the Kyoto Protocol of 1997 – an agreement to which America never formally agreed.<sup>1</sup> The new arrangement would have real teeth in the way of an international enforcement mechanism.

That possibility was once thought dead, but was gaining momentum as we went to press. As the Conference was opening, the EPA officially determined that global warming is a threat to public health. The Agency classified 6 greenhouse gasses – including carbon dioxide – the stuff we breathe out – as pollutants. So now by law, specifically the Clean Air Act of 1970, the government will be forced to regulate emissions of those gasses. In effect this is an end run around Congress. The real cost of any new regulations will at first hit at power producers with those costs in turn passed on to other industries and consumers. At this point the economic impact is uncertain, though likely significant.<sup>2</sup> And now in a last minute change of plans, the White House, - citing the growing momentum toward a new global accord' - is saying Mr Obama will attend the conference on its last day. That's something US presidents are not wont to do unless some sort of success is assured. That success would likely take the form of some sort of binding agreement. And therein lays the real story.

According to Lord Monckton, the former science advisor to British PM Margaret Thatcher, the proposed treaty that was originally supposed to be adopted at the conference was nothing less than a recipe for laying the groundwork for world governance. Here's how Monckton recently presented it. "I read that treaty. And what it says is this, that a world government is going to be created. The word "government" actually appears as the first of three purposes of the new entity. The second purpose is the transfer of wealth from the countries of the West to third world countries, in satisfaction of what is called, coyly, "climate debt" – because we've been burning CO2 and they haven't. We've been screwing up the climate and they haven't. And the third purpose of this new entity, this government, is enforcement." He sees it all as a step on the road to Marxist World Government.<sup>3</sup> One method that will be pushed is sort of an international version of the Cap and Trade legislation being put forward by the Obama administration. The scheme is in essence, a 'permit to pollute' that can be traded on the open market. The plan would limit the amount of energy a family / individual could use and its proponents claim that it would only cost about $140 per year. But independent analysis shows that this is far off the mark. CBS News looked at the numbers and came up with a cost of about $1,761 per family. The Heritage Foundation agrees with their figure coming up slightly higher than that. In effect it would serve as a massive tax on energy that would doom some jobs and likely result in the outsourcing of many others. That would further depress the economy resulting in a decrease in the GDP and therefore a reduction in tax revenues.<sup>4 5</sup> Other than that, it's not a bad plan.

But despite all that, the world thinks it's a good idea. After all, if Al Gore, the inventor of the Internet is right, global disaster is right around the corner. [Lucky for him though that he's been doing so well with his investments through the Green Growth Fund. Mr Gore it seems would stand to profit greatly from any national or international move toward a cap and trade world. But that's all just coincidence I'm sure.<sup>6</sup>] Still, if we're hurtling toward a climatic Armageddon, well than perhaps....But the problem is: We're not!

For added evidence that anthropomorphic global warming is a hoax, we can thank some hackers that got into the e-mails and computerized documents of the Climatic Research Unit (CRU) connected with the University of East Anglia in Great Britain. The CRU is the foremost coordinator of research on global warming. And do you know what the hackers discovered: That the CRU was cooking the books. They were stacking the data. Pulling the ol' switcheroo. Now you say, what's the big deal? Well put it this way: The entire case for global warming was built on data like of which the CRU was an integral part. And now we're finding out that much of it was falsified. The world's leaders are still determined to make decisions affecting everyone on the planet based on what it turns out is - falsified data. We will all be forced to cut back to a more primitive lifestyle while the elites who designed the scam make out quite well, thank you - in the new green economy with their well-positioned carbon-credit trading firms.

So how bad is the scam? The UK's Telegraph called it the "worst scientific scandal of our generation".<sup>7</sup> The Washington Times summarized much of what was learned from the hacked documents and e-mails. They found that the scientists were "brazenly discussing the destruction and hiding of data that did not support their global warming claims"; that they were "concealing information that counters their bias"; and one researcher told another that certain information shouldn't be shown around "because the data support critics of global warming".<sup>8</sup> [We can't have any real science flying about at a research facility, now can we?] The general view was that the ends certainly did justify the means. After all the Club of Rome led the way on this, publishing The First Global Revolution in 1991. We quote: "The common enemy of humanity is man. In searching for a new enemy to unite us, we came up with the idea that pollution, the threat of global warming, water shortages, famine and the like would fit the bill."<sup>9</sup> Since then the race has been on to make their case and fulfill their agenda – at the cost of truth and accuracy if necessary. The agenda: World Government! President of the Council on Foreign Relations, Richard Haass once wrote, "State sovereignty must be altered in a globalized era." As summarized by Daniel Taylor, Haas believed that 'a system of world government must be created and sovereignty eliminated in order to fight global warming, as well as terrorism. Moreover, states must be prepared to cede some sovereignty to world bodies if the international system is to function.' Here's Haas again: "Globalization thus implies that sovereignty is not only becoming weaker in reality, but that it needs to become weaker. States would be wise to weaken sovereignty in order to protect themselves". Daniel Taylor correctly points out that Global Government is something that must be 'sold' to a world willing to be convinced. As the title of his article attests, "Global warming hysteria serves as [an] excuse for world government."<sup>10</sup>

Now the chief scientific advisors for the Obama administration fall right in line with that way of thinking. Carol Browner for instance is the 'Climate Czar'. Her official title is Assistant to the President for Energy and Climate Change. Here's her pedigree. She belonged to the Commission for a Sustainable World Society, an organization affiliated with Socialist International, which serves as an "umbrella" for socialist parties in countries around the world. The group she belonged to calls for "global governance" and wants successful countries to downsize their economies as a means of addressing global warming. And there is evidence that back in the 70's she worked for Citizen Action, a group affiliated with the SDS (Students for a Democratic Society). Many of us remember the SDS as a radical 60's revolutionary group, born of the American socialist movement which later spawned the violent Weathermen group. Then there's the 'Regulatory Czar' Cass Sunstein. In the words of World Net Daily, he holds that "global climate change is primarily the fault of US environmental behavior and can, therefore, be used as a mechanism to redistribute the country's wealth." [Isn't that what socialism & communism are all about? But I digress.] He's in favor of a global carbon tax that would necessarily take a financial toll on the US. That would be "justice"! He'd also like to see American wealth given to less advantaged nations, something that he refers to as "distributive justice". A promoter of both communist and socialist ideals, Sunstein wrote in a 2004 book, The Second Bill of Rights, that an economic crisis of historic proportions will provide "the most promising conditions for the emergence of socialism in the US." Let's add in just one more example of strange One Worlders in high places, Obama's 'Science & Technology Czar' John Holdren. Mr Holdren would like to see global limits to population growth legally enforced, as well as what he calls a "surrender of sovereignty" to a World Government, by the US and other nations.<sup>11</sup> In his perfect world a governing world body would maintain a Global Army, have the power to levy taxes and control all of the world's natural resources; - as part of a "comprehensive Planetary Regime".<sup>12</sup>

Now that we've heard from the political thinkers driving the agenda, let's hear from some of the scientific-types doing the 'alleged science'. One researcher admitted to utilizing a "trick" to "hide the decline" in temperatures since 1960.<sup>13 14</sup> Another writer summarized his work with this revealing comment. "So, we can have a proper result, but only by including a load of garbage."<sup>15</sup> To get such proper results, a scientist urged a colleague to "Apply a VERY ARTIFICIAL correction for decline!!" And one researcher in the Climate Analysis Section wrote, "The fact is we can't account for the lack of warming at the moment and it is a travesty that we can't."<sup>16</sup> Phil Jones the head of the CRU was forced to step down by the scandal. In one of his e-mails he said, "I would like to see the climate change happen so the science could be proved right."<sup>17</sup>

Now at least some scientists are very forthright when confessing to their agenda. Professor Chris Folland, of the Hadley Centre for Climate Prediction and Research opined that "The data doesn't matter. We're not basing our recommendations on the data. We're basing them on the climate models."<sup>18</sup> [Translation: 'Data – shmata, just fit the square peg in the round hole!'] Dr David Frame of Oxford said, "The models are convenient fictions that provide something very useful."<sup>19</sup> Christine Stewart, Canada's former Minister of the Environment probably summed it up best. "No matter if the science of global warming is all phony... climate change provides the greatest opportunity to bring about justice and equality in the world."<sup>20</sup>

Take all of this together and we can see what it is; an agenda, a cause, - World Government - in search of a justification. Create the right crisis and the world will clamor for 'peace and security'. They will demand the solution at any cost to freedom, independence and self determination. The elite have telegraphed their intentions. The emergence of the e-mails, - hacked or not, - has lifted the veil on this scientific crime that is being used to justify the reordering of the globe; - the establishment of a New World Order. But the Obama administration and others around the world have indicated that this will have no effect on their intentions to pursue their climate agenda. Then add in the manipulation of the economy by the Illuminist elites, and you can begin to understand the scope of what's happening. There is momentum in that financial sphere too, to concentrate control of the world's economies in some sort of global authority. It is but another sign of the same coin. For the unbelieving world this is part of the plan to set up the Kingdom of Antichrist. But for we who believe it is another mile post passed on the road to the fulfillment of the prophetic Scriptures; just another sign emphasizing the imminent return of Yeshua and the onset of the sorting and judgment that will come with the Day of the Lord. As Christians we have nothing to fear. "But you, brethren, are not in darkness, so that this Day should overtake you as a thief. You are all sons of light and sons of the day. We are not of the night nor of darkness." (1Thessalonians 5:4-5) We have the light of God's Word and the assurance of His promises to guide and comfort us. "I will never leave you nor forsake you". (Hebrews 13:5) So "lift up your heads, for your redemption draweth nigh." (Luke 21:28) (KJV)

YADAS

Peace Loving Iran.....which of course is not interested in developing nuclear weapons, has successfully simulated a nuclear warhead detonation; - just for giggles, I imagine. The operation is said to be one of the most technologically challenging in the development of nuclear weapons.<sup>21</sup>

Oh Those Crazy Terrorists – Egyptian security units have discovered a cache of bomb vests of the type used by suicide bombers. Hamas operatives were preparing to ship them across the border into Israel. The vests were to be used in a terror campaign that was to be launched after an anticipated prisoner swap with Israel was completed.<sup>22</sup>

Oh Those Crazy Episcopalians – The Episcopal Diocese of Los Angeles has just elected lesbian Mary Glasspool as Assistant Bishop. This would be the second Gay Bishop elevated in the US; the first being Gene Robinson of New Hampshire. Robinson’s appointment caused many conservative (Bible-believing) Episcopal Churches to withdraw from the covering of American Church, in many cases organizing under African Bishops. The Anglican leadership had asked the US leadership to honor a moratorium on raising openly gay clergy to the office of Bishop. Now it seems that the moratorium will be broken, as Glasspool awaits only a nod from a majority of the American leadership, which has indicated in the past that ‘gay and lesbian clergy were eligible’ for elevation to a bishopric.<sup>23</sup>

Iran In South America – An Argentinean official is warning that Hezbollah and Iran have been successful in planting a network of terrorists in Bolivia, Ecuador, Nicaragua and Venezuela. Argentina has or is already dealing with a terror problem of their own.<sup>24</sup>

Forcing Abortion – The Council of Europe is “considering a draft resolution that would deny the right of hospitals to opt out of doing abortions”.<sup>25</sup> So much for ‘freedom of conscience’!

Embryonic Stem Cells Are Back – The administration has approved funding for research on more embryonic stem cell lines, with more to come.<sup>26</sup> There are a couple of problems with this. First of all, embryonic research depends on the destruction of human life in the embryonic stage. Secondly, all the real successes in stem cell therapies have come from adult stem cells. In addition embryonic therapies come with a danger of tumor development and inherent “genetic instability”. In contrast, adult cells not only have produced successful results in treating numerous diseases and conditions but are now found to be able to form several, varied cell types.<sup>27</sup> But alas, that wouldn’t feed the blood lust of the abortion industry or the ethic of convenience over all.

Dividing Jerusalem – As this went to press we got the news that the EU passed a resolution that recognized the pre-1967 borders “including with regard to Jerusalem”. The foreign ministers resolved that a way to peace “has to be found to resolve the status of Jerusalem as the capital of two states”.<sup>28</sup> “And it shall happen in that day that I will make Jerusalem a burdensome stone for all peoples”. (Zechariah 12:3)
